WELCOME TO NORTHERN IRELAND'S WORKING ROYAL RESIDENCE

Be our guest at Hillsborough Castle and discover stories of celebration, entertainment, diplomacy and negotiation in the company of our expert hosts.

An elegant 'Irish Big House' built by Wills Hill the 1st Marquess of Downshire, Hillsborough Castle was first established in the 1750s.

In 1925, the castle was sold to the British Government becoming Government House, the seat of the Governor of Northern Ireland and the residence of the monarch here.

The castle's original name was restored in 1972 when it became official residence of the Secretary of State for Northern Ireland.

Today you can experience the majestic State Rooms filled with glorious artworks from the Royal Collection.

GARDENS AND ESTATE HIGHLIGHTS

GLEN AND PINETUM

The 3rd Marquess created the romantic Glen complete with its Giant's Causeway relics and the magnificent grove of conifers, called a pinetum. The trees all originate from America and were planted in the 1870s.

YEW TREE WALK

When the gardens at Hillsborough were enlarged in the 1830s, part of the town was moved and the old Moira Road was closed. It is now known as Yew Tree Walk after the paired Irish Yew trees that line its path.

MOSS WALK

Hillsborough was originally known as 'Cromlyn' (Gaelic for crooked glen) and the site of its old church and graveyard can be found at the end of Moss Walk. Lined with 150-year old lime trees, this magnificent moss carpet is very fragile. Please help us preserve its unique ecosystem by using the adjoining paths.

LADY ALICE'S TEMPLE

This delightful garden feature is named after Lady Alice Hill, beloved daughter of the 4th Marquess of Downshire.

The elegant Alice regularly featured in the society and fashion pages of the national press and a loyal tenant described her as a 'universal and deserved favourite'.

THE WALLED GARDEN

Built in the 1760s with warm brick walls to grow fruit trees, the garden has been restored and re-presented, complete with fruit and vegetable beds growing seasonal produce, a dipping pond, herbaceous borders and an apple orchard.

HYDRO HOUSE AND ICE HOUSE

Over the centuries Hillsborough's residents have found ingenious ways to harness nature for their own convenience. Explore the atmospheric Ice House and the recently restored Hydro House to discover how water can be used to provide refrigeration and power all year round.
